The London, Capt. Burleigh, bound from Amflerdam to S. Carolina, touch'd at Cowes, from whence, after clearing, the fail'd again the 21st of May: So that the Story told in one of Last Saturday's Papers, of her having heen taken a Days after her Sailing from the her having been taken 5 Days after her Sailing from Amiterdam by a Spanish Privateer, is not true; and of her being fafe arrived at Charles-town, inflead of her being carried into Cadiz.

Capr. Elphinstone, of the Walpole, who fail'd from Cowes the 10th Inflant for Barbades, but put back by contrary Winds, met with a Frenchman from Amiterdam for Nants, who gave him an Account of two large Spanish Barca longas cruizing off of the Starr, with 60 Mon each; one of which he faw on the 13th at Nine in the Morning coming down before the Wind, but as foon as they view'd him they immediately clapped on a Wind, and haled over to the Coaft of France; it blew fo very hard that he could carry but two Courses, otherwise would have given him Chace.

The Winter Galley, Capt. Truman, bound from Newcastle for Gibraltar, was taken by a Spanish Privateer and carried into Ceuta, but was retaken out of the Harbour by the Sunderland Man of War, Capt.

Byng, and brought into Gibraltar.

The Lady Catherine, Bergefon, from Uddewsile in Swedish Norway for St. Male, is left on the Goodwin Sande.

Extract of a Letter from Jersey, dated the 7th of August 1740.

The Spanish Privateers are all round our Coaff, and are feen by us in the Day-time from the Town Hill. They have taken a Boat and two Sloops (Capt Perchard one of them) on the Norman Coaft, and treated the Paffengers in a barbarous Manner, after having taken from them every thing they had, and left them as naked as they were born; and a Waman in patticular they used most cruelly. We. don't know how many of their Rovers are round us but they give out there are Seven ready to fally forth upon the find Ship that comes in their Way, they shelter themselves among the Rocks by reason of their Smallnes, and are not more than 40 Men in a Boat, but they row with 16 Oars on a Side, and go so swift that they are upon you as soon as fcen. Capt Migaud, who carries this, goes to Guernfey in the Night, and hope will escape them, he has an Account of what has happen'd, for the Regency. fo that we hope proper Care will be taken of them.

We hear that his Majefly's Ships the Victory and Lion, being refitted, are fail'd to join Sir John Norris's Squadron.
